Funds for this project were provided by the Department of Community Affairs, Florida Coastal Management Program, using funds made available through the NOAA under the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972, as amended.

Executive Summary

On January 28, 1993, the Department of Environmental Protection, formerly the Department of Natural Resources, entered into an agreement with the Department of Community Affairs to initiate the first of a three year project to enhance beach access opportunities within the State of Florida. The overall goal of the project is the modification of the state beach management program to ensure, as a condition of state funding for beach restoration projects, the provision of public access sites and adequate parking at specified intervals. The culmination of studies to be conducted during the three year period will result in the modification of Rule 16B-36, Florida Administrative Code, to require local governments to provide an appropriate level of public beach access and parking to be eligible for funding under the Florida Beach Erosion Control Assistance Program.

Using funds made available through the NOAA under the Coastal Zone Management Program, the Division of Beaches and Shores contracted the services of the University of Florida, Department of Recreation, Parks and Tourism to inventory and map all public owned properties which front the Atlantic Ocean, Straits of Florida, and Gulf of Mexico, and to survey local access providers to determine their perceived access needs. The findings of the inventory and survey efforts will be used during year three of the project to establish the public access and parking requirements for state participation in beach restoration projects.

The beachfront property inventory spanned an eleven month period during which researchers obtained data from the property appraiser of each of Florida's 33 counties which contain sandy beach resources. Parcel identification numbers, ownership and acreage information was sought for each property, however, it was found that much of that information is not maintained since public owned lands are not assessed for tax purposes. Subsequently, ownership and acreage information for many properties was not available through the county property appraisers.

Each public property was mapped and a site inspection was conducted to gather facility information. Maps were digitized for storage on the Division's ARC/INFO based geographic information system. A data base was developed to store and maintain the property and facility information. As a result of the inventory effort, information was collected for nearly 1,700 properties statewide. These sites contain over 343 miles of publicly owned shoreline representing nearly 42 percent of all high energy beachfront found within the state.

During the months of October, November and December a mail survey of local access providers was conducted to determine their perceived beach access needs. All local governments having sandy beaches within their jurisdiction were identified for inclusion in the survey and mailed questionnaires. The results of the survey indicate that the perceived method of accessing the beach is via public access sites, as opposed to commercial or privately owned properties. As supported by the inventory, the most common public access type reported was street ends and pedestrian walkways.

Respondents overwhelmingly described their community to have an adequate number of access sites with good locations, however issues related to parking were repeatedly reported. Insufficient parking and beach erosion were reported as the most important access concerns followed by the lack of support facilities. With regards to the provision of support facilities, local governments indicated that parking was the most important followed by restrooms and the signage of beach access sites.

Beachfront Properties Under Public Ownership Inventory

BEACHFRONT PROPERTIES UNDER PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Using funds made available through the NOAA under the Coastal Zone Management Program, the Division of Beaches and Shores contracted the services of the University of Florida, Department of Recreation, Parks and Tourism to inventory and map all public owned properties which front the Atlantic Ocean, Straits of Florida, and Gulf of Mexico. The inventory spanned an eleven month period between February and December, 1993. During that time researchers obtained data from the property appraiser of each of Florida's 33 coastal counties which contain sandy beach resources. Property identification numbers, ownership and acreage information was obtained for each parcel of public beachfront property when available. In addition to platted public parcels, researchers identified beachfront public street ends for inclusion into the inventory.

Using the information available from the property appraisers office, the approximate property boundaries of each public beach access site was mapped on aerial photography. Those sites located within the Division's Coastal Construction Control Line Program counties were mapped on rectified aerial photomaps and digitized for storage on the Division's ARC/INFO based geographic information system. For the remaining counties, sites were mapped on aerial photography or plat maps available from the property appraiser. In instances where a public park or access site consisted of multiple parcels, the site was mapped as a single property.

Site inspections were conducted for each property to verify the location and accessibility of each site. In addition, information regarding parking, signage, support facilities and beach conditions was obtained through the visit. The ownership and facility information obtained from the property appraisers and site inspections was entered into a data base developed to store and maintain the information.

The results of the inventory effort found nearly 1,700 public owned beachfront properties statewide. These sites contain over 343 miles of shoreline representing nearly 42 percent of all high energy beachfront found within the state. Overwhelmingly, the vast majority of the access sites are small areas containing little or no support facilities. A total of 1,032 street ends and pedestrian walkways, representing 61 percent of the total number of sites, were found to exist.

Summarized below is a listing by county of the beachfront properties and shoreline length tabulated by access type. County reports detailing individual site facility information and maps depicting site locations, follows.
